The incidence of penile nodular metastasis from penile cancer. A retrospective study. Penile metastases are extremely rare. This retrospective study investigated the incidence of penile metastasis from penile cancer in a series of patients. A review of surgical records and pathology archives identified all patients with penile metastases from penile cancer from 1975 to 1995. The patient and tumour characteristics, adjuvant therapy, and outcome were analyzed. Six cases of penile metastases from penile cancer were diagnosed during the study period. Penectomy with bilateral orchidectomy for tumours 4-10 mm in diameter was performed in all cases. Five of 6 patients were alive and free of disease during a mean follow-up of 31 months. One patient died of distant metastasis 11 months after penectomy. Eight cases of penile metastases from penile cancer have been reported in the literature. These findings suggest that penile nodular metastases in the Japanese population should be considered a complication of a primary penile tumour.

What's New In?

A photographer spotted I made a homemade apron to protect myself from the splashes when I was laboring... I took my camera and went to the lakeside where the road from the neighboring village ends. There are two lagoons there, one with a small stream running through it; the other is almost a lake. I photographed a few fruit vendors who sell a variety of fruits. I bought some mangoes and tangerines and left. On the way back to the house I kept stopping to take pictures of the small villages with the colorful houses and cobblestone streets. It was a place of contrasts; one small farm was surrounded by debris with a snake in it; another had food vendor outside his house selling fresh sweet corn; and yet another had a muddy slush road at the end of the road.

Axiom Business Solutions launches re-engineered brand Axiom Business Solutions, UK's leading supplier of small business software and services, has launched an updated version of its website, AxiomBS.com, which has been re-engineered and is now powered by a new platform. The website is enhanced with a brand new look, which is now powered by the new AxiomBS.com and a new corporate image that puts more focus on the software and services that AxiomBS offers, rather than the company's heritage in the hospitality sector. Martin Elliott, Managing Director, Axiom Business Solutions, explains, "The old website, which was launched in 2001, had been the main source of communication for the company over the years and we have now reinvented it by designing it in a fresh and modern way. We have also developed a new corporate logo, which is designed to stand out from the crowd and help our customers to discover the award-winning software, customer service and support services that we deliver." The business software and services company launched their new website at the start of June and is happy with the response. The company currently has over 200 business customers in the UK and Ireland, which number is growing year on year. "Our success over the last 15 years has depended not only on the great products and support services we deliver, but also the access to business-leading software that our customers have trusted to solve their own challenges for a decade," continues Martin. "With the launch of our new website we have been able to expand the brand even further, making it even easier for customers to find us. We
