Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a liquid crystal display device and more particularly to a liquid crystal display device comprising an array substrate having thin film transistors or the like, and a peripheral circuit substrate having an external input signal-terminal to which an external input signal is applied, wherein a peripheral area of an insulating film between a substrate of a peripheral circuit and a TFT substrate on which an active matrix substrate is mounted are removed and electrically connected to each other. The present invention also relates to a method for fabricating a liquid crystal display device. 2. Description of the Prior Art A display device, e.g. a liquid crystal display device, in which a liquid crystal display panel is connected to a peripheral circuit substrate needs an insulation layer for separating the liquid crystal display panel and the peripheral circuit substrate from each other and insulation layer between a display substrate (substrate of a peripheral circuit substrate) and an array substrate in an active matrix substrate, i.e., a TFT substrate. Such an insulation layer is mainly formed by an interlayer insulation film. A conventional liquid crystal display device of this kind comprises an array substrate and a peripheral circuit substrate, wherein the array substrate has thin film transistors or the like, and the peripheral circuit substrate has an external input signal-terminal to which an external input signal is applied. FIG. 16 is a schematic sectional view of a conventional liquid crystal display device. An array substrate 1 in FIG. 16 has a TFT substrate 21, a data line (gate line) 2 and a scanning line (source line) 3 extending in the horizontal direction. A data signal is supplied from a data line 2, and a scanning signal is
